

The Engineers of the Future

“Good opportunities in today’s society are few and far between – Arkwright is one of these few providing support to talented young designers and engineers.”

Robert was the second award winner at the Royal Grammar School, Worcester which encouraged others to apply and subsequently there have been four more Scholars.

Robert’s sponsor was Huntleigh Technology plc and having provided regular updates of his academic progress he was given the opportunity to meet the company directors at their head office and subsequently went to Huntleigh several times. He approached them for support through University and work experience every summer to which they generously agreed. Huntleigh have also offered Robert a two year contract on completion of his degree.

Robert has met other Arkwright Scholars at Loughborough University who are all reading engineering and believes the programme is highly respected by all participants.

“The Scholarship has given me a superb start in both my career and real life. I have developed as a person as well as a designer.”

“In interviews for university the Scholarship had some weight and was widely accepted as an official measure of a student’s talent and capabilities.”

Robert Inett

“It is vital for the country’s future economic prosperity that we all encourage the development of good engineers. We have been very impressed with the enthusiasm and diligence shown by Robert and were delighted to be able to offer him a contract at the end of his degree. We hope that we will be able to offer opportunities to more Arkwright Scholars in future years.”
